The Ueno Royal Museum October 11 2019 -January 13 2020

Monaco Albert II visited the Van Gogh exhibition

The reigning monarch of the Principality of Monaco, Prince Albert II, visited Ueno Royal Museum (Ueno Park, Tokyo) on the 24th and watched the Van Gogh exhibition. In this exhibition, Van Gogh's early works depicting the simple life of the village, colorful cypresses such as "Cypresses", and masterpieces of Cezanne and others lent from the Monaco royal collection are also on display. "I felt that the exhibition was a complete exhibition because it was easy to understand the changes in Van Gogh's painting style and its influence on other artists," said Prince Albert, who enjoyed the museum's curation.
